Mourn not for her while faith with upraised eye Surveys the realms of immortality That sing immanuels love and endless songs. Mourn not for her, She rests upon a shore Where pain and sorrow ne'er can reach her more. Her ransomed spirit dwells with Christ above And now she surely knows that "God is Love" Yet who can chide the burning tears that flow, For one so justly dear so soon laid low By death's cold hand - the sorrow is too dear, For nature in its weakness not to weep. But faith assures thee, nor assures in vain, That thou shalt meet the lost of love again In that blest region of celestial day, where God shall wipe all tears of grief away And sing with thee in one eternal strain Worthy the lamb that once for us was slain.
